EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Iran's negotiators left Doha on Sunday after three days of Qatari-mediated talks, and an official briefed on the talks told Reuters a draft US–Iran proposal is now circulating with a follow-up meeting possible; Tehran says it is waiting for Washington's answer to its two-day Hormuz plan, but its conditions, starting with an end to the US blockade, have not changed. Axios reports Netanyahu is pressing Trump to strike immediately after Tuesday's vote while Trump wants talks to play out; Trump said Sunday the war will end "one way or the other." The Atlantic reports options range from a few hours of strikes to weeks and that Trump is questioning Hegseth and Caine. Tucker Carlson claimed, citing unnamed sources, that a US nuclear strike on Pickaxe Mountain could come within days; the White House would not comment on military plans and nothing confirms it. At sea, UKMTO issued two new attack warnings for 01 NOV: a Seabulk-owned tug hit in the strait and reported partly sinking, and the tanker Largo Atom hit by two projectiles 72 nautical miles east of Ras al-Khafji, Saudi Arabia, deep in the northern Gulf. The Saudi-led coalition struck Houthi targets in Dhamar and Hodeidah. Oil fell at Sunday's reopen (January Brent about $111, WTI about $102) and stock futures rose. A Learjet crashed about nine miles from Mar-a-Lago an hour after Trump left, killing all nine aboard. The Oleshky truce ended Sunday night; Russia refused an extension and shelling resumed. Minnesota early voting ends today. MN regular is $4.0743 and diesel $6.1583 (AAA 02 NOV); gold ~$3,904; debt $40.594T (29 OCT, no newer record).

ITEM 1: Iran Diplomacy — Iranian Team Leaves Doha; Draft Proposal Circulating; Tehran Awaits US Reply on Two-Day Hormuz Plan

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN

Iranian negotiators left Doha on Sunday, 01 NOV, after a third day of talks with Qatari mediators, "though not because of difficulties in the negotiations," and "a draft proposal is being circulated with a follow-up meeting possible," an official briefed on the talks told Reuters on 02 NOV (Reuters via Al-Monitor). Two Iranian officials told AP that messages with the US continue through the mediator and that Tehran is waiting for the latest US response to a proposal to fully reopen the Strait of Hormuz within two days if Washington meets several conditions (AP). Foreign ministry spokesman Esmaeil Baghaei said the basis of the talks is the seven-step plan Iran drew up in September, now on a faster timeline, and that Deputy Foreign Minister Kazem Gharibabadi was in Doha to pass messages to Washington. He said: "No final agreement can be initiated, nor can the Strait of Hormuz be reopened or secured, unless the US naval blockade is brought to an end, Iran's demands are respected, and Iran's legitimate requirements are addressed." Asked about the midterms, he said Tehran does not expect them to "give birth to a new US" (Reuters via Al-Monitor). Foreign Minister Araghchi told state media on 01 NOV that talks on the "two-day proposal" are

	"ongoing and progressing" but have reached no final conclusion, and that Iran is ready for "both defence and diplomacy" (Reuters via CNA). Harder voices in Tehran pushed back: parliament deputy speaker Ali Nikzad said "The window for negotiations with our adversaries is now closed because they have nothing new to offer," and lawmaker Esmail Kowsari said Iran will not negotiate until seven conditions set by the Supreme National Security Council secretary are implemented (Iran International). For Washington, Assistant Secretary of State Donald Blome told the Manama Dialogue on 01 NOV that "the hand of negotiation has been extended, and those channels have continued to be open and active," but that the US is prepared to take a different course and will not let Iran hold the region and global economy hostage (AP via Iran International and Times of Israel). Separately, China said on 02 NOV it will send Middle East envoy Zhai Jun to Iran, Saudi Arabia, and Oman this month (China Daily; Arab News).
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	A draft text on the table is the first concrete sign of progress, and it gives Trump a diplomatic off-ramp right as the post-election strike window opens. But Iran still demands the blockade end first, which is the main US lever, so a deal before Wednesday remains unlikely. China's envoy trip adds a second outside mediator with a stake in Gulf oil.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Reuters via Al-Monitor and Rappler (02 NOV, read directly); Reuters via CNA (02 NOV, search excerpt); AP "Where things stand" and Mideast roundup (02 NOV, search excerpts); Iran International (01 NOV, read directly); Times of Israel and Dawn (Blome, search summaries); China Daily, Global Times, Arab News (envoy, search summaries).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	Fox News's live page kept the focus on Trump and Rubio saying strikes remain "on the table" but are unlikely before the midterms; no right-leaning coverage of the Doha draft was found.
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	Reuters and AP stressed the talks did not break down and that Iran awaits a US answer; Iran International stressed hardliners' rejection of nuclear talks and their demands.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH that the Iranian delegation left Doha and that messages continue through Qatar. MODERATE that a draft proposal exists (single anonymous official, no text seen). HIGH on Baghaei's, Nikzad's, and Blome's on-record statements.

ITEM 2: US–Iran Military Track — Netanyahu Presses for Strikes Right After the Vote; Trump Says War Ends "One Way or the Other"; Iranian Commanders Promise a Longer War

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	Axios reported on 01 NOV, citing an Israeli and a US source, that Netanyahu is pressing Trump to strike Iran immediately after Tuesday's midterms while Trump wants to let negotiations play out for now; the two had a call on Saturday that the Israeli source called "tough" and the US source called "direct" (Axios via Iran International). Before a rally in Iowa on 01 NOV, Trump told Right Side Broadcasting Network "we've had such a victory" and the US will "put it away very soon, one way or the other. Either they'll make a deal, or we'll just end it" (Benzinga). The Atlantic, citing two outside advisers, reported that Trump is considering another round of strikes after the elections and has asked allies for their views of Secretary Hegseth and Gen. Caine; options reviewed at the White House last week reportedly range from strikes lasting several hours, to several days, to an operation lasting weeks, or keeping the blockade while threatening force. Officials raised concerns about Iranian retaliation, US munitions depletion, and oil prices, and Trump has not authorized new strikes (The Atlantic via Israel National News). Iranian officials answered with threats: army spokesman Mohammad Akraminia said a new war "could last longer than previous conflict" and that the US president "would not be in a position to dictate the timing or the conditions of its conclusion," and said the military is shifting toward an offensive doctrine; Defense Minister Mehrdad Akhlaghi promised a "proportionate, decisive, and impactful response"; IRGC spokesman Hossein Mohebbi repeated that "there are no geographical limitations" (AFP via News Central TV; Iran International). Lawmaker Nasser Pejmanfar urged

	Iran to leave the NPT, and cleric Mohsen Araki called for a review of membership (Iran International citing Tasnim). Trump returned to the White House early Monday after rallies in Iowa and Kansas (Fox News).
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	The decision now sits with Trump alone, with Netanyahu pushing for speed and a draft deal pulling the other way. The Atlantic's reporting on Trump's doubts about his Pentagon leadership adds a risk of personnel turmoil during a possible operation. Iranian rhetoric points to retaliation against US forces and Gulf energy that would not end on Washington's timetable.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Axios via Iran International (01 NOV, search excerpt); Benzinga quoting RSBN (01 NOV, read directly); The Atlantic via Israel National News (01 NOV, search excerpt; The Atlantic itself not read); Iran International (01 NOV, read directly); AFP via News Central TV (cited through a secondary monitor); Fox News X post (02 NOV).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	Fox News covered Trump's final rallies and framed strikes as "on the table" but not before the vote; TheBlaze and Daily Wire posted nothing on Iran in this period that was found.
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	The Atlantic framed Trump as doubting the officials who ran the war; Axios framed a rift between Trump and Netanyahu over timing.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on Trump's and Iranian officials' on-record statements. MODERATE on the Axios call account and The Atlantic's reporting (anonymous sources, consistent with earlier WSJ and AP reports). HIGH that no US strike order has been announced.

ITEM 3: Information Environment — Tucker Carlson Claims a US Nuclear Strike on Pickaxe Mountain Could Come Within Days; White House Declines Comment; No Corroboration

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	Late on 01 NOV, Tucker Carlson posted on X that "Under pressure from Israeli prime minister Benjamin Netanyahu, the Trump administration may be within days of launching a nuclear strike on Iran," naming Pickaxe Mountain as the target (X; the post had about 44 million views by Monday morning). According to Anadolu's summary of the post, Carlson argued conventional weapons cannot penetrate about 300 feet of granite there, quoted an unnamed observer that "Bibi calls Trump about it every day," said Trump could decide by 07 NOV, said Vance and Witkoff are urging diplomacy, and alleged the administration has quietly revised nuclear doctrine to make battlefield nuclear use easier. A White House official said the administration does not comment on sensitive military plans and that Trump keeps all options open to prevent Iran from getting a nuclear weapon (Anadolu). Anadolu notes Trump explicitly ruled out using nuclear weapons against Iran in a 16 OCT Newsmax interview; that interview was not checked in this review. Iran denies nuclear activity at the site. Tim Pool responded, "A nuke on Iran would be catastrophic and no one would benefit" (X).
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	The claim is unverified, but its reach is large enough to shape public debate on the eve of the election and could add to oil and market volatility Monday. Any administration denial or confirmation would be significant; watch for a direct White House statement.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Tucker Carlson X post (01 NOV, excerpt via X search); Anadolu Agency (02 NOV, read directly); Mediaite, Daily Mail, investingLive (headlines); Tim Pool X post (02 NOV).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	Carlson framed it as Netanyahu dragging the US toward nuclear war; Tim Pool echoed the warning. No Fox News, TheBlaze, or Daily Wire coverage of the claim was found.
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	Anadolu, Mediaite, and the Daily Mail reported it as a "commentator claims" story, noting the lack of confirmation and Trump's earlier rejection of nuclear use.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH that Carlson made the claim. LOW that a US nuclear strike is being prepared (single commentator, unnamed sources, no corroboration). Carried in Unconfirmed/Quarantined.

ITEM 4: Gulf Shipping — Two New UKMTO Attack Warnings: Tug Hit in Hormuz and Reported Sinking; Tanker Largo Atom Hit by Two Projectiles Off Saudi Arabia

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN

UKMTO Warning 191-26 reports that at 1509 UTC on 01 NOV the master of a merchant vessel relayed a VHF Channel 16 Mayday saying another vessel had been struck by an unknown projectile in the Strait of Hormuz (UKMTO). Seatrade Maritime, citing Vanguard Tech, identified the vessel as the Panama-flagged tug Selat Storm, operated by Selat Marine Services with Seabulk International as beneficial owner per Pole Star, and said it was reported to be partly sinking. UKMTO Warning 192-26 reports that at 2347 UTC on 01 NOV a tanker heading southeast 72 nautical miles east of Ras al-Khafji, Saudi Arabia, was struck by two unknown projectiles on its port side; all crew are accounted for and there is no reported environmental impact (UKMTO). Clearwater Dynamics identified it as the Liberia-flagged oil/chemical tanker Largo Atom. ISW assesses Iran "likely struck" the Hormuz vessel and that Iran "continues to be the only threat to civilian shipping in the strait" (ISW, 01 NOV). Iranian state agency IRNA reported on 01 NOV that the IRGC Navy said two "violating" tankers hit naval mines on an "unauthorized route" and a supertanker was left ablaze; no vessels were named (IRNA via Benzinga). Correction to yesterday's report: UKMTO had in fact published 188-26 and also 189-26 on 30 OCT (a time-late report of a crude tanker struck by an unknown projectile during an outbound Hormuz transit on 28 OCT), and 190-26 (file dated 31 OCT; a large fishing vessel boarded by unauthorized personnel, possibly a pirate action group, location not read in this review), with Update 001 issued 01 NOV (UKMTO).

US IMPACT ASSESSMENT

The Largo Atom strike is in the northern Gulf near Saudi and Kuwaiti waters, far from Hormuz, showing Iran can hit shipping across the whole Gulf. Attacks on a US-linked offshore tug and a tanker off Saudi Arabia on the eve of a US decision raise the cost of the blockade and keep freight and insurance rates high.

SOURCE SYNOPSIS

UKMTO warnings 189-26, 190-26 (search excerpt), 191-26, and 192-26 (PDFs read directly); Seatrade Maritime (02 NOV, read directly); Clearwater Dynamics (search summary); ISW Iran Update (01 NOV, read directly); IRNA via Benzinga (01 NOV).

MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)

No right-leaning coverage of the new ship attacks was found in the monitored feeds.

Times of Israel and Devdiscourse (Reuters) ran the Saudi tanker strike as breaking news; Seatrade framed it as Iran continuing attacks "at the beginning of November."

CONFIDENCE

HIGH on both UKMTO incidents. MODERATE on the vessel names (maritime security firms, not UKMTO). LOW on the IRGC mine claims (no vessel names). Attacker in 192-26 not attributed by UKMTO.

ITEM 5: Houthi–Saudi War — Coalition Strikes Dhamar and Hodeidah; Missile and Drone Intercepted Toward Southern Saudi Arabia; Houthis Push Toward Aden

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN

Saudi Joint Forces Command spokesman Maj. Gen. Turki al-Maliki said the coalition targeted "vital resources" in Houthi-held Dhamar and Hodeidah governorates on 01 NOV; Houthi media said strikes hit an oil facility in Bajil and the Ras Issa port, and Houthi outlets reported three, later seven, people wounded in the Hodeidah area (ISW; Al Arabiya headline; Middle East Eye). Saudi air defenses intercepted one Houthi ballistic missile and one drone launched toward the kingdom's southern region on 01 NOV; the Houthis have not claimed the attack (ISW; Anadolu headline). On the ground, ISW reports Houthi fighters advanced onto high ground in al-Maqatirah District of Lahij Governorate, possibly setting conditions to besiege or capture Aden, while government-aligned forces sent reinforcements and repelled a Houthi push in Jawf (ISW). AP reports the UN migration agency says more than 300,000 people in Yemen have fled the renewed fighting (AP, headline summary).

US IMPACT ASSESSMENT

The Yemen war is spreading on the ground and draws Saudi air defenses that would also be needed if Iran retaliates after a US strike. Americans in Saudi Arabia remain under the ordered departure and airport warnings carried yesterday.

SOURCE SYNOPSIS	ISW Iran Update (01 NOV, read directly); Al Arabiya and Anadolu (headlines); Middle East Eye live blog (search summary); AP Mideast roundup (02 NOV, search excerpt).
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on the coalition strikes and intercepts (official statements). LOW on Houthi casualty figures. MODERATE on the Lahij advance (single Yemeni journalist, contested).

ITEM 6: US Economy / Markets — Oil Drops and Stock Futures Rise at Sunday Reopen; Apple Earnings Today, Jobs Report Friday

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	At about 8:43 p.m. ET Sunday, Dow futures were up 0.35% to 52,102, S&P 500 futures up 0.41% to 7,645.50, and Nasdaq 100 futures up 0.80% to 28,762.50; December WTI fell 2.37% to $101.65 and January Brent fell 2.09% to $111.06 (Benzinga). Earlier in the session The Closing Print measured December gold futures near $3,905 and the 10-year yield near Friday's 4.93%. Friday's chip-led selloff cut the S&P 500 1.8% to 7,580.07 (The Closing Print). Apple and Palantir report after Monday's close; AMD, Shopify, and Pfizer report Tuesday; the October jobs report is due Friday, 06 NOV (Benzinga). An NBC News poll shows Democrats leading Republicans 52% to 45% on control of Congress among registered voters; Polymarket traders put Democrats' chances of winning the House at 95% and the Senate at 72% (Benzinga). AAA's national regular average slipped to $4.1694 on 02 NOV from $4.1732 a day earlier (AAA). OPEC+'s 01 NOV hold of December targets, reported yesterday, did not move the reopen.
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	Markets are pricing a better chance of a deal than of strikes, with oil giving back part of October's 10% gain. That reverses fast if strikes resume Wednesday or more tankers are hit; the Largo Atom strike came after this snapshot. A Democratic Congress would also change the fiscal and tariff outlook markets are trading on.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Benzinga (01 NOV, read directly); The Closing Print (01 NOV, search excerpt); CNBC live updates (01 NOV, search excerpt, similar oil levels); AAA (02 NOV, read directly).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	No right-leaning coverage of markets or oil was found in the monitored feeds this period.
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	CNBC framed oil's drop as "a reversal from Friday's gains"; Newsquawk tied it to the Doha talks.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on futures and oil prints as of the times stated (they move overnight). HIGH on the AAA figure. Poll and prediction-market figures are as reported by Benzinga.

ITEM 7: Elections and Justice — Final Day Before the Vote; Trump Closes in Iowa and Kansas; NAACP Suit Is a Records Case, Not a Bid to Block Monitors

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	Trump held final rallies in Iowa and Kansas on 01 NOV and returned to the White House early Monday (Fox News). Correction to yesterday's report: the NAACP's case, NAACP v. Dhillon, is a Freedom of Information Act suit seeking DOJ's records on its plan for more than 1,000 election monitors, not a suit to block the deployment. DOJ's 28 OCT declaration from Voting Section chief Eric Neff says law-enforcement personnel will take part for the first time but will be unarmed and cannot make arrests, and the judge ordered DOJ to produce records on a rolling basis before 03 NOV (NAACP release, 29 OCT). A legal tracker reports the court denied an emergency restraining order; that detail was not confirmed from the docket. No Supreme Court filing by DOJ on the Ninth Circuit's 30 OCT California ballot ruling was found (search of court records and Democracy Docket). Fox News reported the Texas Senate race is the most expensive in US history at nearly half a billion dollars, with a new poll showing Democrat James Talarico leading Ken Paxton by seven points (pollster not named in the post). Polls open Tuesday; DOJ's full monitor list is due on Election Day.

US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	Expect disputes over federal monitors in states that limit their access and early legal fights wherever races are close. Judge Thompson's TRO protecting California election officials remains in force through 16 NOV.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Fox News X posts (02 NOV); NAACP press statement (29 OCT, read directly); Democracy Docket and Supreme Court docket search (search summaries); Benzinga (NBC poll).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	TheBlaze posted "The case for optimism on Election Day" and clips of Trump praising Michigan's Haley Stevens; Fox highlighted Paxton warning Talarico would "pack the court."
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	The NAACP framed the monitors as possible intimidation and told voters they need not talk to them.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on the NAACP case's nature and DOJ's declaration. LOW on the TRO denial (secondary tracker only). HIGH that no Supreme Court California filing was found.

ITEM 8: Domestic Safety — Learjet Crashes Nine Miles From Mar-a-Lago, Killing All Nine Aboard; Weather Suspected, NTSB Investigating

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	A Learjet 60 flying from Austin, Texas, to the Bahamas crashed onto Military Trail near Cresthaven in Palm Beach County, Florida, at about 12:50 p.m. EST on 01 NOV, killing all nine people aboard; no one on the ground was reported hurt (Transportation Secretary Duffy; Gov. DeSantis; FAA via BBC). Air traffic audio has the crew reporting "moderate turbulence," "managing the ice," and then an "overspeed condition descending 20,000 ft per minute" before saying "we're out of time." Thunderstorms were in the area. About 600 residents of a nearby trailer park were evacuated and the road will be closed at least 30 days. Trump had left on Air Force One from a nearby airport about an hour earlier (BBC). The NTSB leads the investigation with FAA support; no cause has been determined.
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	Nothing found suggests a link to the President or to foreign action; current reporting points to weather and icing. Rumors online about the jet's path over Mar-a-Lago are unproven.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	BBC (02 NOV, read directly); AP and WPBF (headlines); Fox News and TheBlaze X posts (02 NOV).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	Fox News led with DeSantis's comparison, "It looked like a missile going down," and the crash's proximity to Mar-a-Lago; Tim Pool relayed rumors about the flight path while saying "There's no proof any of this is true."
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	BBC and AP focused on victims, cockpit audio, and the weather.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on deaths, location, and audio. Cause undetermined. Flight-path rumors LOW.

ITEM 9: Russia–Ukraine — Oleshky Truce Ends After Russia Refuses Extension; Shelling Resumes in Kherson; Ukraine Hits Kstovo Refinery

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	The Kherson-region truce that began 27 OCT expired at 10:59 p.m. Ukrainian time (20:59 GMT) on 01 NOV with no violations reported by either side; a Ukrainian official told AFP that Russia refused Kyiv's offer to extend it (Al Jazeera; RTE). First Lady Melania Trump, who helped broker it with Pope Leo XIV's involvement, said on X it was "a success, delivering critical aid to the region and enabling the evacuation of nearly 800 people." Kremlin spokesman Peskov called the operation positive. Explosions were reported in Kherson one minute after the truce ended (Militarnyi citing MOST), and at about 8 a.m. Monday a Russian drone hit a car in Kherson, wounding two people (Euronews). A Ukrainian officer said Russia used the pause to bring in troops and ammunition (RTE). Elsewhere, Russia's overnight attack of 433 drones (371 downed) cut power in four regions; a strike in Vinnytsia killed a 13-year-old girl and others (Al Jazeera says three dead, BBC two). Ukraine hit Russia's Nizhny Novgorod region with more than 100 drones, with Russian media reporting a fire at the Kstovo refinery, and Zelenskyy said Ukraine hit a missile-fuel plant in Rostov region.

	Ukraine's air force said its air alert system was apparently hacked Sunday evening to warn falsely of radiation over Kyiv (BBC). US-mediated Russia–Ukraine talks are set to resume this month (RTE).
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	The truce is a real humanitarian win for the US-brokered effort, but Russia's refusal to extend it shows the limits of piecemeal deals before the November talks. Continued Ukrainian refinery strikes keep pressure on global diesel, which affects US pump prices.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	Al Jazeera (01 NOV, AFP/AP/Reuters, search excerpt); RTE (01 NOV, search excerpt); Euronews (02 NOV, search excerpt); Militarnyi (search excerpt); BBC (01 NOV, search excerpt).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	No right-leaning coverage of the truce's end was found in the monitored feeds.
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	RTE quoted a Ukrainian lawmaker calling it the "biggest de-escalation since 2022"; Al Jazeera framed Kherson as "bracing for return of war."
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on the truce's end, the refusal report (AFP source), and the resumed attacks. MODERATE on the Vinnytsia death toll (outlets differ). Final Oleshky evacuation total: "nearly 800" per the First Lady; no official breakdown seen.

ITEM 10: Minnesota — Early Voting Ends Today; Buttigieg Joins Flanagan in St. Paul; Omar Still Uncharged; Soaking Rain Forecast Through Election Day

WHAT / WHERE / WHEN	Early in-person voting in Minnesota ends today, 02 NOV, after nearly 729,000 ballots were cast by Friday morning; polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday (MPR News). Fox News reported former Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg joined Democratic Senate candidate Peggy Flanagan for a campaign event in St. Paul, and ran a Fox News Digital piece on Minneapolis's Karmel Mall, where Rep. Ilhan Omar recently appeared. Omar faces Republican John Nagel and independent DeVelle Jackson in MN-5; no charges against her were found in this review, and she has vowed to keep campaigning after federal agents searched her Washington home (CBS Minnesota; Bloomberg results page). MPR forecasts widespread rain Monday through Wednesday, 1 to 2 inches across much of the state and up to 3 inches in west-central Minnesota (MPR).
US IMPACT ASSESSMENT	Heavy rain on Election Day could lower same-day turnout, especially in greater Minnesota, which raises the weight of the record early vote. The Omar probe remains the state's main legal wildcard after the election.
SOURCE SYNOPSIS	MPR News (31 OCT and 01 NOV, search excerpts); Fox News X posts (01 NOV); CBS Minnesota (video headline); Bloomberg election page (search summary); KSTP "At Issue" (headline only, not reviewed).
MEDIA FRAMING (RIGHT)	Fox News framed the Karmel Mall story as a question of whether it is "a symbol of the American dream or a sign of challenges facing immigrant assimilation."
MEDIA FRAMING (LEFT/MAINSTREAM)	MPR focused on the early-vote rush and the weather.
CONFIDENCE	HIGH on turnout, dates, and forecast. HIGH that no Omar charges were found as of this review.
